

Creative Writing Workshops for Kids with Danielle Davis

About the workshops:

Who: 8 to 12-year olds (3rd-6th grade)

Where: In person or online over Skype

Length: 45-60 minutes

What: One workshop or a series

In my signature interactive workshop, participants will walk away with a character outline, the beginnings of a first scene, and a map to guide their story in independent writing.

Other possible workshop topics:

Setting

Your Writer's Life

Writing "Whoa Moments" (action scenes)

Revision Techniques

Show Don't Tell and Description

Memory Poems

Crafting a Character

Storymaps

& More!

About me:

I grew up in Singapore and Hong Kong and now live in Los Angeles where I read, write, and roller skate. I have an M.A. in literature and creative writing and a background teaching middle school and community college English. One of my favorite things is facilitating workshops for kids that spark their unique imaginations. I blog about picture books at This Picture Book Life.

About This Writer's Life:

My YouTube channel, This Writer's Life, is full of videos exploring what it's like to be a writer as well as helpful tools, activities guidance, and encouragement for any writer's life—from getting ideas to overcoming doubt, from mapping a story to revision techniques. Plus, each episode features someone I know and admire in a creative field offering advice for young writers from their own process!

About the book:

Zinnia's yarn bomb flops.

Her older brother (aka best friend and yarn bombing accomplice) leaves without a word.

*And then the worst ever of worst ever:
BEES. IN. HER. HAIR.*

Finalist for the 2018 SoCal Independent Booksellers Award.

"...decidedly offbeat and emotionally true."
—Kirkus

"...Davis does an excellent job crafting human characters who are varied in their emotions and grow in awareness."
—School Library Journal
